Reno, Nevada

Porche Cars North America International Headquarters presented a unique Architectural design challenge. Porche, while moving its corporate office from Germany to the United States, wanted to have the office environment express the "Porche" lifestyle and mystique.

The project program called for very high end finishes and furnishings in the public and executive areas and a more austere and Spartan environment in the work areas. The solution was an open office landscape system in the work areas and private offices for the executives.

Space planning was accomplished using a proprietary office furniture and open office landscape system that provided maximum flexibility, communication and wire management, design aesthetics, and return on investment. Also included in the design was an ambient light system that qualified for an accelerated tax depreciation schedule maximizing the Owner's initial investment.

The project scope included programming, Architectural design, space planning, interior design, furniture specifications, artwork program, plant program, graphics program, office and desk accessories program, construction administration, and furniture installation and coordination. On-site supervision and management was also included as an expanded service to the Owner.
